FOUR INVESTIGATIONS BEING MADE INTO BROOKLYN ELEVATED WRECK; 16 OF INJURED IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Fatal Brooklyn Elevated Wreck.

New York, June 26.—Four separate investigations are under way to fix responsibility for the fatal crash of an elevated train in Brooklyn late yesterday, in which seven persons were killed and 11 injured.

Mayor John F. Hylan is conducting a probe in behalf of the city.

District Attorney Charles Dodd of Brooklyn personally headed investigators from his office, who sought to place criminal responsibility for the disaster.

The public service commission sought facts along the same line.

Officials of the transit company conducted an inquiry of their own.

Of the injured 45 are in hospitals, 16 in a serious condition. The death list may increase as several of the more severely injured are expected to die.

Mayor Hylan's investigation has revealed, it was stated, that "old wooden cars and rotting ties and elevated structure" was responsible for the wreck.

The transit company on the other hand said the element of "human responsibility" was thought to have played a part in the tragedy.

Dodd and the public service commission have not voiced an opinion.

Two of dead have not been identified. One is a man about 55 years old, the other a woman about 60 years old.

Wrecking crews removed the splintered cars from the street, where they plunged from the elevated structure, during the night.

LIQUOR POURS INTO NEW YORK TO BE SEIZED BY GOVERNMENT MEN

17 Ships So Far For Their Attention—Washington Announces That Delays in Sailing, Due to Rush of Work for Examining Officers, Will be Because Captains Persist in Violating Law.

Washington, June 26.—The government's policy in the international ship liquor controversy became a little more "hard boiled" today when the treasury department refused to grant any concessions in the case of foreign vessels whose outbound sailing dates may be delayed while prohibition agents inventory and seize their stock of beverage liquor.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Moss issued orders to speed up the enforcement work at New York, but declared that ship captains who had brought liquor over in violation of the Volstead act, would have to assume the responsibility if the vessels were held up.

New York, June 26.—Rum continued to flood New York's waterfront today. With eight ships in port, gigantic liquor stores under the custom seals of foreign nations locked in storerooms, nine other boats with like supplies were to dock during the day.

Port Surveyor Thomas W. Whittle and Palmer Canfield, state prohibition director, gathered their forces this morning to visit the ships.

Custom seals will be broken on all ships. Whittle stated and the stocks aboard examined. Physicians from the office of the surgeon general will pass upon the amount needed on each ship as "medicinal stores" and order the removal of all surplus liquor to government warehouses.

LEWIS YORK IS ARRESTED TWICE

Sergeant Hanley Picked Him Up in Saugerties on Grand Larceny Charge and Deputy Ellsworth on Reckless Driving Charge—York Furnished Bail.

Lewis York, an employee of Armour & Company of this city, was arrested Monday afternoon at Saugerties by Sergeant Hanley on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree on complaint of his employer who claims York stole the Ford roadster which figured in the three-car accident on the Saugerties road several nights ago in which several persons were injured.

Sergeant Hanley was driven to High Woods of Officer "Slim" Wood in the police car Monday, but York was not at home. He was found later with relatives in Saugerties and brought to the city hall and arraigned before Judge Groves.

The hearing was adjourned until next Monday and bail fixed at $500 which was furnished.

York was immediately re-arrested by Deputy Sheriff Ellsworth on a warrant obtained by Max Weinberger of Sherman street, whose car was one of the two struck by the Ford car. Weinberger charges that York was guilty of reckless driving.

Later in the day York was arraigned before Justice Webber in the town of Ulster, and the hearing adjourned to July 9, and bail fixed at $500 which was furnished.

York is represented by Attorney Grant M. Brimmer. Mr. Weinberger has retained Attorney Newton H. Fessenden to look after his interests.

5,000 "HELLO" GIRLS ON STRIKE

In Five New England States—Verbal Clashes Only So Far—Demand $5 Per Week Increase.

Boston, June 26.—The strike of New England telephone operators went into effect at 7 o'clock this morning, as ordered by International President Julia S. O'Connor. Early reports show between 5,000 and 6,000 have answered the strike call.

At the close of their respective meetings at midnight, a verbal clash took place between the rival factions. The followers of Annie Molloy, leader of the local known as I-A, who were expelled from the International, cheered her lustily and were answered by the O'Connor faction with catcalls and shouts of "scabs" "cats" and "quitters."

The strike is in force in five New England states, Maine, Vermont, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Massachusetts. The strikers are demanding an approximate increase in salary of $5 over the present minimum of $9 and maximum of $22 and a seven hour instead of an eight hour day.

Picket lines have been established at all important exchanges. According to the strikers, many of the operators off duty today were toll operators. Those on strike contend that the toll operators will be unable to work without the local operators on duty to handle the calls.

Although extra details of police were on duty they had little to do. The early clashes were all verbal.

Telephone company officials say granting of the operators' demand would cost the company $10,000,000. These officials claim the average wage now paid the operators is $20 a week. Union officers contradict this statement and say an average wage of $18 is being paid.

Which Weather Man Says Will Break Terrible Heat Spell—First Death of Day.

New York, June 26.—Promises of showers late today gave hope to sweltering New York that the hot spell would be broken before night.

The day started, however, to be a record-breaker, the mercury touching 81 at 9 a. m. and threatening to pass the high mark of the season, 95, before afternoon. Humidity was exceptionally high, reaching 41 this morning.

The first death of the day, traceable to the heat, was that of Mrs. Dora Katz, wife of Samuel Katz, wealthy wholesale drug dealer.

ADA W. SQUIRE LOSES ON APPEAL

Appellate Division Affirms Decision of Judge Staley Giving Mrs. Netter Damages for Defendant's Failure to Carry Out Agreement to Sell.

The appellate division of the supreme court has recently handed down a decision unanimously affirming the verdict of Judge Staley in the case of Anna V. Netter against Ada W. Squire, which was tried before Judge Staley and a jury for a specific performance of an agreement for sale of house and lot on West Chester street.

The agreement was by correspondence between the parties. The defendant, Squire, later sold the house to V. C. Shader, who was renting the house at that time. On trial it appeared that specific performance of the contract could not be had and the contract submitted to the jury the question of the damages which night Peters was slain, it is under the plaintiff had sustained and stood, and are said to have driven reserved as a question of law whether or not the correspondence was sufficient to establish an agreement. The jury brought in a verdict of $350 in favor of the plaintiff. Later the court handed down a decision holding that an agreement had been established and ordered the award paid to the plaintiff. The defendant appealed to the appellate division with the result stated above. Holden & Cavanaugh of White Plains represented the defendant throughout the proceedings, and H. H. Flemming of this city, plaintiff.

JUDGE HAS WARD MESSAGES

If He Finds They Have Bearing on Case He Will Submit Them to Grand Jury—Two New Witnesses.

White Plains, June 26.—The mysterious cablegrams said by the state to contain clues which will reveal a motive for the killing of Clarence Peters, former marine, by Walter S. Ward, son of the millionaire baker, can be shown to the extraordinary grand jury now investigating Peters' death.

Justice R. S. Wagner ruled the cablegrams as admissible evidence today, reserving, however, the possibility that they may have no bearing on the case. In this event they will be the parties. The defendant, not be shown to the jury. Justice Squire, later sold the house to V. C. Shader, who was renting the house at that time. On trial it appeared that specific performance of the contract could not be had and the contract submitted to the jury the question of the damages which night Peters was slain, it is under the plaintiff had sustained and stood, and are said to have driven reserved as a question of law whether or not the correspondence was sufficient to establish an agreement. Flemming of this city, plaintiff.

About 100 witnesses will be called before the grand jury, Attorney General Sherman said today. He believed the hearing would last about a month.

Justice Wagner said he could not give an immediate decision and intimated he might study the matter two or three days.

Fortune Telling Forbidden In State After Sept. 1 But Weather Forecasters Are Exempt

Gypsies and Seventh Sons May Then Depart In Their High Powered Automobiles.

Albany, June 26.—Gypsies, seventh sons and others who claim the art of fortune telling must watch their step after September 1 in this state or a new law placed on the statute books by the last legislature will get them.

After the first of September, fortune telling will be a thing of the past in this state—at least it will be officially. A violation of the new statute is punishable by a fine or imprisonment.

There was considerable argument when the bill came up for passage in the assembly. Some of the members of the lower house thought it was going too far, while others held to the idea that all fortune telling is a fake, and like other fakers should be stopped by law.

There is good reason to believe that hundreds of dollars are picked up every summer throughout the rural communities by Gypsy fortune tellers. But the country folks are not the only ones who fall for the reading of the lines in the palm. Less than two blocks from the State Capitol in Albany there is a band of Gypsies who, according to the local police, have been doing a rushing business in the last few months telling fortunes.

Under the new statute, any person convicted of fortune telling could be fined $250 or sent to jail for six months, or both.

Some doubt was expressed at first as to whether the official weather forecasters would not come under the new law, but this fear has been set at rest by state officials who are certain that telling the fortune of the weather will not be a violation of law.

State officials say that if the law never does anything else but drive Gypsy hands out of this state some good will have been accomplished. No longer do the Gypsies, or at least a majority of them, travel in old covered wagons. Now they use high priced automobiles, consequently it will not take them long to leave the state.

CHIPP ASKS FOR FIRELESS FOURTH

Prohibit Sparklers If You Would Protect Children's Lives, Says Fire Chief—Other "Don'ts."

Chief Chipp, of the fire department, today inaugurated a formal campaign for a safer and saner 4th of July, pointing out that while the holiday is less dangerous than formerly, it still constitutes a menace to life and property.

"The principal life hazard due to the use of firecrackers, sparklers and other fireworks," says the chief, "affects the children and consequently their indulgence in such means of celebrating the day should be rigidly restricted or entirely prohibited. I have no desire to curtail the pleasures of the youngsters, but the situation calls for decided action. The safest way to stage a display of pyrotechnics is to make the occasion a community affair and have the exhibition under the supervision of firemen equipped with extinguishing apparatus."

"The danger of firecrackers is obvious, but the so-called 'sparkler,' which has become notably popular in recent years, presents a serious hazard that is too seldom recognized. The plaything emits sparks that in themselves are not harmful, but the wire core supporting the sparkling element becomes white hot and in that condition will ignite inflammable materials. For this reason sparklers have caused many deaths, the victims usually being young girls wearing flimsy summer dresses. Therefore, prohibit the sparkler if you would protect your children's lives."

Another serious matter is the presence of quantities of fireworks and other explosives in small retail stores not properly equipped for such storage or legally entitled to handle combustibles. I want to call the public's attention to the fact that this is in direct violation of a city ordinance and we intend this year to prosecute infractions more vigorously than ever before.

"Toy balloons using kerosene-soaked waste constitute another danger, since they may fall upon wooden shingle roofs and other inflammable surfaces and thus cause fire. They may in addition ignite forest and brush areas."

"The thing for the public to remember is that the 4th of July is a patriotic occasion and that the best way for the people to prove their

New Paris Ideas for Early Summer

Simple in Outline and Very Complicated in Detail.

Very lovely are the early summer gowns now being shown by the leading Paris dressmakers, writes a Paris fashion authority in the Boston Globe. Some of these dresses are simple in outline and very complicated in detail; this is the note of the season. Colored organdie muslin is going to be exceedingly prominent this summer. In many cases we shall find valuable laces dyed to match the unexpected colors of the muslin.

Green, in all shades, is one of the popular colors of the year. I have lately seen grass-green velvet hemmed with sable and embroidered in silver or pale gold. We are entering on an era of brilliant color and in this connection we shall find green, bright blue and a curious shade of purple-pink much used. Dress experts are insisting that black dresses have "gone out." It is mainly true that we see very few black costumes this spring, but on the other hand I find that the best dressmakers in the rue de la Paix are making black a foundation for elaborate and costly creations. This is especially true of black lace. There is a certain make of fine black chantilly which is freely used for dinner dresses, tailored or gathered and combined—very successfully—with dark blue or tete de negre chiffon.

It is certain that flower trimmed hats of an elaborate order will be very much worn this summer. Just at the immediate moment we are clinging to our smart little cloche shapes trimmed with a length of ribbon, or merely with a handsome tassel or plaque, but the Paris milliners have decided to bring back elaborately trimmed hats and I am afraid we shall have to accept them. This does seem rather a pity, as the small cloche has proved universally becoming, especially when accompanied by a handsome floating veil; and it is certain that wide brim hats heavily trimmed with flowers or feathers are becoming only to youthful girls and to tall girls.

A little later on in the season we shall find leghorn flaps immensely popular. This picturesque hat is exactly the right thing to wear with laced dresses—muslin, taffeta or silk.

Millinery Vies With Nature in Colorings

As regards shapes, the small mushroom style is enjoying first place. The cloche has won honors for second place, while the shepherdess style is being revived and slashed brims are very smart. Among the trimmings, flowers are playing a very important role this season. They are so beautiful they vie with nature in their exquisite colorings. In some instances flowers are used in bandeau effect. For instance, there is the trim sailor with bandeau of moss rosebuds. As a rule, flowers are banked high on the back of the hat. In fact, practically all the hats this season are worn directly at the back or side back. Cockades of ribbon are being used a great deal, as are quantities of lace, not only as trims but in small eye veils.

Green Crepe Romaine With Egyptian Trim

White dotted swiss for adults as well as children is among the good sellers this season. Ribbon sashes, corsages, abrochons or flowers of ribbon that can be pinned on by the hidden safety pin make the most effective trimmings for such dresses. The ribbon gives the color touch without which no dress is complete and plays up the sheerness and weave of the dotted swiss.

Parasols Prominent in Summer Fashions

Parasols will have a prominent place in the sun of this summer's fashions, notes a fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune. One wonders why they are not always important for summer, for they certainly add greatly to one's comfort. But, like every other article of fashionable dress, they experience periods of neglect. Last summer they were revived as a fashion note after several years of inertia.

Beads Tied at Neck With Ribbon Bows

Many and varied are the novelties in jewelry this season. Long strings of pastel-shaded beads are popular and are tied at the neck with small ribbon bows. Short strings are newer and are gaining popularity. They are tied tightly about the neck with narrow ribbon into a tiny bow, with long streamers. Beads are chosen with regard to color rather than design or quality and should match the ribbon sash or ribbon embroidery on the frock with which they are worn.

Nothing Good Comes From Evil.

That which is won ill will never wear well, for there is a curse attending it which will waste it; and the same corrupt dispositions which incline men to the sinful ways of getting will incline them to the like sinful ways of spending.—Matthew Henry.

Charming Oyster-White Two-Piece Sport Suit

Here is a dainty oyster-white two-piece suit in roshanara crepe. The fine knife plaiting in the skirt has an occasional box plait to break the monotony. The coat is embroidered with a design of Indian print inspiration in fine black stitching and ties with a large bow.

Eliminate Furniture Which Is Not Needed

The selection of furniture has its sanitary side. First of all, too much furniture should be avoided. A room overfull of objects is difficult to keep clean and free from dust. Each room should be so planned and arranged that the least possible moving of heavy objects is necessary on the days when the vacuum is put to work. As the first principle of beauty is simplicity, so the first principle of good housekeeping may be said to be elimination of the unnecessary, which reduces to simplicity.

Overstuffed furniture undoubtedly has its place. But that place is not in an ordinary cottage or small bungalow. If it is selected, see that the cushions are removable. Sofa cushions and chair seats and cushions should be renovated from time to time. If you have any doubt of this, try even in a well-kept house, beating the cushions and see whether or not the dust flies. If it does, consider the renovator.

Parasols Prominent in Summer Fashions

Parasols will have a prominent place in the sun of this summer's fashions, notes a fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune. One wonders why they are not always important for summer, for they certainly add greatly to one's comfort. But, like every other article of fashionable dress, they experience periods of neglect. Last summer they were revived as a fashion note after several years of inertia.

Strikingly new ideas appear in this summer's parasols. These in the shapes as well as the materials with which they are covered. Garbly patterned silks such as those used in dresses are treated so that they shed the rain and are used for umbrellas as well as parasols.

It seems as if every possible use had been made of the Deauville handkerchief, but now we see it in parasols. One wonders if there will be a handkerchief left in the world if manufacturers keep on exploiting this article.

REV. FR. NEUMANN IS REMEMBERED

At the civic celebration at St. Peter's School Hall Monday evening in honor of the Rev. J. P. Neumann's twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood, a large crowd was in attendance. The hall was very prettily and artistically decorated and presented an unusual scene of gaiety.

The Rev. Father Neumann was the recipient of many gifts which included a purse of $2,000 from the parishioners of St. Peter's, a silver service from the Rondout Social Manner-chor, a chalice from the Christian Mothers and the Children of Mary Society of St. Peter's, twenty-five silver dollars from the St. Barbara Auxiliary and also a handsome engraved set of resolutions from the congregation. Sister Vivencia of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., formerly Miss Nightingale of South Rondout, painted a life size picture of Father Neumann's pet dog, Heinie, and this was also presented him at this time.

During the evening a number of addresses were given by clergy and members of the parish. The musical program was rendered faultlessly and was encored heartily.

"DRY CRUSADERS" INVADE A STUBBORN FIELD

By Telegraph to The Freeman, New York, June 26.—A flying squadron of "dry crusaders" headed by the Rev. Miss Norma C. Brown, of Bloomington, Ill., invaded New York today.

Meetings will be held at which speakers will urge strict enforcement and observance of the prohibition laws.

Miss Brown is an ordained minister of the Church of Christ and formerly served as chaplain of the Illinois senate.

Miss Butler New Leader of New York Women

A significant chapter has just been written into the political history of New York State. With the appointment of Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler as chairman of the women's executive committee of the Republican State Committee, the influence of a new generation in politics becomes a concrete fact. Party managers all over the country are greatly interested in the selection of this young leader and it is said that a number of other states may soon follow New York's lead.

In spite of her youth, Miss Butler has already made a reputation among the older women leaders of the state for her good judgment, political acumen and vision. She has gained the respect of the women with whom she has worked and they are solidly back of her in the big task of working out their organization under the G. O. P. standard.

New York's new leader is not young in experience. Her environment from childhood has been political. For the past ten years she has been actively interested in both state and national affairs. She combines with the seriousness of a student the far sighted vision so essential to real leadership and she has a sense of humor. This her friends say, will be one of her greatest assets in meeting difficult situations which always accompany every political campaign.

Miss Butler has had a very prominent part in Republican politics in the past few years. She is a member of the board of governors of the Women's National Republican Club and has served as election district captain in the upper West Side of the city, where she worked out her political apprenticeship. She is a member of the New York County Republican Committee and associate leader of the 15th Assembly District. Miss Butler's friends say that she is fond of outdoor sports and an indefatigable worker.

SHOULD REGARD TIMBER AS CROP

Finite Forestry Policy is Necessary, Says Government.

Whether timber is to be mined from forests, without thought of replacement, like coal from our hills, or whether it is to be considered as a crop to be harvested and grown like farm crops is the main theme of an article in the 1922 Year Book of the United States Department of Agriculture, entitled "Timber: Mine or Crop?" The article discusses very thoroughly the problems now confronting the country as a result of the lack of a forestry policy and the resulting depletion of the nation's forests by logging operations and fire.

Very Little Virgin Timber Left. Nearly half the land area of the United States, some 822,000,000 acres, was originally forested, says the article, but the forested area has now been reduced to 138,000,000 acres of virgin forest, 250,000,000 acres of comparatively inferior celled and second growth, and 81,000,000 acres of barren land, a total of slightly less than 470,000,000 acres.

"Largely through timber mining," it continues, "the original stand of timber has been reduced from more than 1,000,000,000,000 board feet of virgin timber to 1,000,000,000,000 feet of virgin timber and 600,000,000,000 feet of additional in celled and second-growth stands."

"Seventy-five per cent of the remaining virgin timber is west of the Great Plains, and more than 50 per cent of all our remaining saw timber is in the three Pacific coast states, while nearly half of the lumber cut is consumed in the region east of the Mississippi river and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers. Lumber producing and consuming centers are so far apart that we pay $250,000,000 annually in lumber freight."

Traces Shifting Industry. The article traces the shifting of the timber industry from the East to Middle West and South, and then to the West. The necessity for vigorous reforestation and for the conservation of our remaining forests is emphasized, according to the article, the available timber supply of the United States is being consumed about four times as fast as it is being replaced.

HOME FOR HISTORIC CANNON
Pre-Revolutionary Gun to Be Mounted at Winchester, Va.

Instead of being sold as old iron, a pre-Revolutionary war cannon used by George Washington in the defense of Winchester, Va., after he erected Fort Loudoun, some years before the war for independence broke out will be preserved and mounted on the lawn in front of the Handley library.

The cannon, in possession of the family of the late Noah W. Solenberg for 50 years, was recently purchased at a personal property sale by Frank H. Taylor. It has been announced that Mayor W. W. Glass and his business associates, Bord R. Richards, Alva C. Richards and F. W. Bailey, had closed a deal to buy the cannon at a nominal sum and that permission to mount the historic gun at the Handley library had been given by the Handley board of trustees.

Mr. Taylor will also contribute to the cost of erecting and marking the relic.

ROAD BUILDING

Vast System of National or Interstate Highways

There was a day, not very far back, when vision in road building was about as broad as a man's farm or a community's interest. Pork barrel methods and political pull, not yet a memory, were a big part of the accepted order. Then it became possible to see to the county limits and still later it gradually was revealed that roads leading from one county to another might be a convenience to a reasonable number of travelers. Thus emerged the idea of state systems.

It has remained for recent months, however, to bring into potential existence a vast system of national or interstate roads that in a few years may reasonably be expected to lie, like long ribbons of white, across every section of the country and link up the states, the cities and counties even more closely than they were joined in the construction of railway lines. The idea isn't a dream, but a thing of the national statute, provided for in the federal highway act of last November and now rapidly assuming form through co-operation of the state highway departments with the United States bureau of public roads.

The system will comprise more than 175,000 miles, 7 per cent of the entire public road mileage of the United States. Of this amount three-sevenths will be composed of interstate roads, the remainder to make up connecting state systems. There is state and federal money enough in hand or in sight to start the actual work, and nearly all the states now have submitted to the national bureau plans for the sections of road that will go into the interstate system. And the bureau is seeing to it that the sections meet at the state lines. No federal aid will be allowed on any highway which does not fit into the general scheme of a national or state system.

This is vision in road building, bounded only by the limits of the country itself. It will mean results in the shape of roads that link up and lead somewhere and bring service to all rather than a favored few.—Kansas City Times.

Colored Pins Indicate Danger Spots in Roads

A rather original way of ascertaining the condition of roads and the places where repairs are necessary has been worked out by a road commissioner for state roads of Maryland. It is based upon the accidents occurring on the highways of the state. Upon receipt of each accident report, a numbered colored pin is put in the proper location on a map of the road system of the state. Fatal accidents are marked with a red pin and other accidents are marked with yellow pins, the numbering on the pin referring to a card index system, enabling one to find the character of each accident.

By keeping this record, it has been found that bad stretches of road can be easily located because of the number of accidents occurring thereon. In many cases it was found that the road on that stretch was too narrow, or had a bad approach to a bridge, and in many instances these stretches had never been listed as being in need of repair or change. The method outlined has proved successful and has located many dangerous spots.—E. B. House, Department of Civil and Irrigation Engineering, Colorado Agricultural College.

Good Roads Are Called Great Aid to Churches

"Where roads are best churches are strongest and civilization bears its choicest fruit; where roads are poorest churches are weakest and ignorance, poverty and crime abound."

This is the outstanding thought in an article written by Dr. M. Johnson, former pastor of the Austin Presbyterian church at Chicago and now director of the Lee Highway association. Doctor Johnson, in his article, points out that the modern highway will do as much for a rural community as a railroad, school or church, serving as a means to bring the people together and promoting the consolidated school, the union church and the civic center. These, he shows, result in more regular attendance at church and school and better-paid preachers and teachers for the rural communities.

Smoothness of Highways Needed for Easy Riding

While the smoothness of a road is desirable for easy riding, there are other reasons, such as the saving of wear and tear on the machines from the vertical movements caused by roughness and the fact that it takes less power to run over a smooth road than it does to go over a rough road.

Rocky Road. "The road to the police court," mused the motorist, "is paved with good pedestrians."—The Passing Show (London).

Road Connects Seaports. A highway is being planned along the South Atlantic coast linking the chief seaports from Norfolk, Va., to Jacksonville, Fla.

Grade Crossings. There are more than 250,000 highway grade crossings in the United States.

THE COLONEL GOLF

By ELEANOR REED JOHNSON

(By McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

OPHELIA was worried—not because her pins had burned that morning, nor because the strawberry plants looked the worse for the wear of a long, cold winter. The strange reason for her trouble was that Silas, her husband, of all men, had bought an automobile.

Meal-time, contrary to numerous specialists on digestion, was the most favorable opportunity for discussing household problems, so at the supper table Ophelia launched her campaign for explanations.

"Silas, this morning Mr. Preston called to ask if you would rent the field to the golf club this season."

"I hope you told him 'no.' I have other plans for the field this year and I don't care how much the golf club offers," answered Silas with decision.

"Why, old Betsy can't plow the land. You said last year that before she had the field half done all the corn would be tasselless hereabouts."

"I know how old Betsy is, and that is the very reason I bought the Lizzy to plow the land this year."

"An automobile plow a field?" exclaimed the incredulous Ophelia.

"A Lizzy," corrected Silas with a dry smile.

"But, Silas, what is the use of gambling with an uncertain crop when the golf club is willing to pay you that nice rental, and you won't have to work a bit? I know why you want to plow the land. It is to try out that new variety of corn you were experimenting with last year. When there is a mortgage on the farm, and land knows what else to pay up, there is no time to experiment, Silas Knight."

The next morning the "Eureka plow" began its mission in the sloping green field behind the farmhouse. There was one disturbing element, however, in the person of Mr. Preston, the golf club representative.

"Listen, please, before you spoil another foot of this land. The golf club will pay $800 this season. Don't let such an excellent course go to waste in cornstalks."

"Twenty-five years ago my father cleared this land for planting. The last five years I haven't had the machines to work with, so all the stretch has been idle. This year the field is for planting, not to roll balls around on. I tell you," and Silas began another row.

Mr. Preston made one final, weak effort: "Well, if you do change your mind, let me know." Silas nodded, and the weary representative disappeared down the road in a cloud of dust.

Summer advanced, and the precious seeds that had been kept so carefully all winter were bearing fruit.

"It's going to be the earliest corn on the market, and it's as sweet as folks ever tasted," Silas announced, after a long day in the field.

"Who are you going to sell it to?" questioned Ophelia.

"I'm going to take it to market myself. I want to introduce it. The first day will be just plain 'selling corn,' but the second day folks will know just how it tastes, and then will come the fun."

Thus it was a week later when Silas, like the worthy Mr. Preston, disappeared down the road in a cloud of dust. He had packed the back of the car (now serving the purpose of a truck) with a large supply of this "exceptional value" in corn. The people in the marketplace bought up the supply, no doubt because it was the first corn on the market, and it did look inviting to the shrewd women shoppers.

Ophelia had the next day's supply gathered, and Silas set out once more. There was a large crowd of shoppers in the market district, and as Silas drew up to the curb he was swamped with people.

"Give me a dozen ears," cried some. "I want two dozen ears," demanded others.

"Let me in here. I want some before they're all gone!" exclaimed one pompous lady.

"Just one moment!" called poor Silas as he mounted the front seat. "I have enough corn for all that's here now, so please take your turns in buying."

"What's the name of the corn?" asked one portly gentleman, hugging a bag filled with two dozen ears.

For a moment Silas did not answer, then quickly, "It's the Colonel Golf." And with that he sold the last dozen ears, promised more for the next day, and started home.

Several days later a member of a large seed firm in the city came out to call on Silas and Ophelia. F.W. have tasted this corn, Mr. Knight, and found it to be excellent in all respects. Now I wish to ask if we may extend this introduction next year through our own firm. We shall be able to pay you as much for the privilege as if you carried on the work yourself."

It did not take long to decide, and after their caller had left, quite contented that his errand had been successful, Ophelia and Silas sat on the porch.

"Now the mortgage can be paid, and all the bills, too," mused Ophelia, happy over the brilliant outlook.

"I reckon Colonel Golf is the best kernel, after all, Ophelia," answered Silas.

Chinese Like Sports but Are Shy of Golf

Although they have taken up tennis and other occidental sports, the Chinese have not yet become golf enthusiasts, according to a report from United States Consul J. K. Davis at Nanking. There are nine-hole courses at Nanking, Chinkiang and Wuhu, but the game is played only by foreigners. The Yangtze valley also affords excellent hunting, and there is no such thing as a closed season, Davis adds.

CATCHER CAN ASSIST CONTROL OF PITCHER

Many Things Backstop Can Do to Help Win Games.

(By CARL LUNDGREN, Baseball Coach, University of Illinois.)

The catcher should make a good target of himself for the pitcher to throw at. Oftentimes a pitcher may be missing the plate either inside or outside continually; move a little in the opposite direction. He may be pitching too high; keep your body a little lower. These things may help his control considerably.

Make a target of yourself on the home plate for your outfielders to throw at. Take throws as near the plate as possible from the outfield or as near the base line as possible when there is a base runner to be tagged.

Practice throwing the mask from your head rapidly in order to go after foul flies. Learn to judge where they are going as soon as they leave the bat and go after them fast, always remembering that unless the wind stops them they always come back toward the diamond due to the English given to the ball by the bat.

Back up first base on throws from the second baseman and on double plays where the first man is retired at second base.

Return the ball to the pitcher at about the height of his shoulders in such a way that it is easy to handle. Never do the ball back to him carelessly, but put it back to him quickly.

With runners on first and third, practice breaking up the double steal by means of a long throw to second to get the base runner or by a very good bluff to second by which you hope to draw the base runner on third towards home and to catch him between bases. A sharp throw to the pitcher may also be used.

The catcher should always be alert to pick a man off on the bases. Many base runners are exceedingly careless about returning to the bases. A wide-awake catcher with a good snap throw will get many outs in this fashion.

MARRIAGE EASY IN RUSSIA

And It Is Said Divorce Is Even Quicker of Attainment Than Is Wedlock.

The separation of church and state in Russia has exercised a strong influence on marriage, as well as on its corollary, divorce. It has been pointed out that marriage by the church has no legal value. To be married and divorced in a half hour is an actual legal possibility in soviet Russia, unless, of course, the spouses in front of the respective registrar's tables happen to be too long. Or, if the couple are of a sentimental turn of mind, they may revert to wedlock in the specified time, if the officials are not too busy.

Ease of marriage and even greater ease of divorce is one of the Communist government's answers to three of the world's greatest social problems—marriage, morality and illegitimate children.

The simple act of both persons appearing before a magistrate and signing a marriage contract constitutes the only marriage ceremony recognized by present law in Russia. There is not even the formality of the spoken vows. Both applicants, however, must present themselves.

Divorce is still easier. In that the desire of only one of the two parties affected is sufficient. Either husband or wife may obtain abrogation of their marriage by appearing at the registrar's office and indicating that continuance of conjugal relations is no longer craved. There is no trial, no appeal. The dissatisfied husband simply signs a paper and walks out a free man. If there are children, however, he does not escape responsibility for support. This latter point, as well as several other correlated legal phases of the divorce question, are still a bit vague, owing to the fact that Russia has no written code of statutes. The only law that exists consists of a few decrees promulgated by the Kremlin and the common sense and conscience of the official. Stripping it of all the sentiment and religious background surrounding marriage in the legal system of the West, the Communist approaches the institution of wedlock as a purely civil procedure, just like any other contract between two persons. The church ceremony has no legal value in Russia, although most people still go through the gesture, as in France, where a similar situation prevails.—Edwin W. Hullinger in Current History.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BILLIE BROWNIE'S DAY

Everyone was waiting to hear about the day Billie Brownie had had and of the things he had seen.

"We are waiting," they all shouted as soon as he arrived, but Billie Brownie said:

"First of all you must have your supper and none of us will ask you any questions while you eat. I know of some who will get people to do all the talking and then because they're not through eating will act as though they were terribly slow, and those who've been talking and doing the entertaining will have to say that they have had enough."

"That always seems so unfair to me—to get some one to do the talking and then not give them time to eat in comfort without making them feel they're holding everything back and that they should be through."

So Billie Brownie had a fine hot supper and everyone else told him Brownie's news, but no one asked him a question. The others had finished their supper before Billie arrived and Billie had had it kept hot for him in the Brownie's Magic Warmer.

After Billie Brownie had quite finished his supper the Brownies gathered about him and Billie told of his day.

"First of all," he said, "I saw two little ponies waiting to take a wagon-load of children for a ride. The wagon was fairly decorated and there were seats on either side."

"But the little boy whose father owned the ponies and the wagon was having a talk with the ponies before they started. He had his face close to each pony's face, in turn, and they all did look so happy—the two well-cared-for ponies and the little boy."

"And I knew there was going to be a jolly ride soon, so that was a very pleasant sight."

"Then I saw a merry-go-round in a big cart standing on a city street. It was not a big merry-go-round, such as there always is at a County Fair, but it was a nice little merry-go-round, and the city children were having lots of fun."

"Then I saw four chow dogs on a little porch which ran along outside of four city windows. Overhead—or, rather, even with the windows—was an elevated railway, and the dogs were always watched by the people who rode in the elevated, for they spent most of their time out on their porch."

"And, indeed, it was strange to see dogs walking along on this high porch, every once in a while going in one of the four windows which seemed to be open at all times."

"The dogs looked at the people riding by in the elevated trains as though to say:

"'Pretty noisy in the city, and the noise is not because of dogs!'"

"Then I saw that dog who also lives in the city and who sits with his head and his paws out of a window on the second floor of a house from where he looks up and down the street."

"He always looks so interested in what he sees, and as though he were almost about to say:

"'Why, I wonder what Mrs. So-and-So is doing out so early this morning!'"

"And:

"'Gracious, but they're all back from market soon today!'"

"Today, as I passed where he was it had already begun to rain, and he was inside of the window. The window was closed, but he was looking out, just the same, his face close to the window pane."

"That dog is such a wise, understanding looking dog. I'm sure he thinks just ever and ever so much!"

"And then I saw a sign outside of a city where there was a great deal of traffic always from automobiles. It was at the outskirts of a suburb, and the sign read that automobilists were requested to drive carefully. Animals, so read the sign, could not speak, so the sign spoke for them in asking the automobile drivers to be careful."

"I thought that was such a nice sign. It had been put up by a humane society."

"Then I heard a little girl asking if she could be allowed to ride an elephant in the circus, and she was told that the elephants had all been spoken for in advance, and that they had engagements every evening and every afternoon with those who were their regular riders."

"And I had a look at a circus—yes, that was the great adventure of Billie Brownie's day. And oh, the circus parade was grand!"

CULINARY POINTS, ECONOMIES, HINTS

Add a teaspoonful of sugar to the rinsing water to stiffen light organdies and lace collars and cuffs.

When cream refuses to whip add the white of an egg and chill, then whip together.

When baking fish, if using a pan without a rack, lay two pieces of cheese cloth under the fish and long enough to hold when removing the fish to the platter. This will insure an unbroken fish.

Chocolate sauce served with hot boiled rice is a combination well liked by chocolate lovers.

Never use old rubbers when canning, as a rubber must be elastic and perfectly free from cracks to be entirely safe.

When the fur neckpiece or collar needs cleaning brush it with cornmeal moistened with toilet water. The alcohol cleans and the fur is left with a pleasant odor.

A frequent cleaning of the icebox, preferably on Friday, will insure the using up of food, and getting ready for the Sunday meals with less waste.

If the oven door works badly, grease with a little lard. This is good for door hinges as well, though a drop of machine oil is better.

To preserve the broom hang it or set it on the handle, broom up.

If any liquid boils over in the oven, sprinkle with salt at once and there will be no odor.

If necessary to iron an article in a short time after sprinkling, use hot water to sprinkle and roll up tightly in a dry towel. Place the bundle in a warm oven and by the time you are ready to iron it the garment will be evenly dampened.

Green foods, though lacking in nourishment, should be served abundantly, especially the leafy vegetables such as spinach, dandelion greens, water-cress and the like. Most of these may be had for the work of gathering, so that there is no excuse for the lack of them in the diet.

GOVERNOR WON'T TALK POLITICS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, June 26.—Asked to comment on President Harding's Denver speech on prohibition, Governor Smith, just back from a two weeks vacation at French Licks, Spring said:

"I lost a half pound while I was away."

Pressed to make a reply to the president the governor finally said:

"I have nothing to say now."

He emphasized the "now."

The governor goes to New York on Saturday and on July 4 he will break ground for the new Kingston park hospital in Long Island for mentally disabled veterans of the world war.

"All this stuff the papers have been printing about me lately is bunk," the governor said. "I went out to French Licks for a vacation and I had a real one."

The governor denied he was planning a trip to Texas this fall to address a large gathering of cowboys. Every effort to induce the governor to talk politics proves futile.

WALLING WON'T ROW FOR WASH'N

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 26.—Gloom settled over the University of Washington camp here today with the definite announcement that Dow Walling, stroke of the varsity boat in Thursday's intercollegiate race, will be unable to row. Walling is suffering from blood poisoning, the result of bite on the knee.

The injury of the Washington star gave new hope to other contestants. Cornell, Navy and Syracuse, who were out on the river early today, gave new zest to the time trials and getting away practice.

The Pennsylvania and Columbia crews also showed marked improvement.

C. E. CONVENTION TO BE IN TROY

The thirty-second New York State Christian Endeavor convention opens in Troy on Friday and closes on July 2. Practically every society in Ulster county will be represented by one or more delegates at the convention, and arrangements have been made to entertain two thousand delegates in that city. The convention program has been received in Kingston and shows that one of the most interesting and attractive programs ever arranged will entertain the delegates this year. Many of the leaders of religious thought in the country will deliver addresses during the various days. The convention singing, always a big feature, will be led by Percy S. Foster, the well known musical director and soloist.

Winners of Lauderdale Contest.

The design contest, which started May 29, ending June 30, has awarded to Donald Milford first prize and second prize to Miss Nellie Finnigan; third prize, Royce Carrington. The prizes were: First prize, $10; second prize, $5; third prize, art set. Donald Milford and Miss Nellie Finnigan have been awarded a free scholarship offer.

Sneeze First.

Gen. Amos Fries, chief of the chemical warfare service of our army, suggests the introduction of a small quantity of a new "sneeze gas" into illuminating gas, with a view to preventing suicides. Assuredly the man contemplating self-destruction will find it extremely disconcerting to have to pause in the midst of the solemn process for so ridiculous a gesture as that of sneezing. Empedocles of Etna, or Socrates with his draught of hemlock, or Cleopatra with her asp could not have departed this life with dignity in the middle of a sneeze. If one stops long enough for that, there is a chance of a sober second thought.

About one suicide in seven in this country is with gas. The fact shows the importance of even a slight obstacle to a sneeze. A fraction of a second may be enough to upset a foolish determination. If he who hesitates is lost, he also may be saved when the pause means an instantaneous review of the causes leading up to the precipitate deed. It does not take long in such instances to decide that one is in error, and to recant.

Parisians Going In for Sport.

Paris is becoming more Anglo-Saxon in character. It is having built around it veritable country houses. The latest development is the opening of an 18-hole golf course, together with tennis grounds, at Aubergenville on the Seine near the forest of Saint-Germain, and the hotel which is connected with the club resembles a country house in every respect. More and more Parisians are developing the week-end habit and are going in for sport. It is a complete transformation.

French Wheat Production.

From an investigation made by the French minister of agriculture it is estimated that the wheat production in France in 1922 was over 6,000,000 metric tons. The decree requiring the incorporation of a certain percentage of wheat substitute in the milling of flour is to be strictly enforced in order to avoid the necessity of importing wheat into France.

CONTROLLING CODLING MOTH

Liquid Spray of Lead Arsenate is Recommended by Expert of Ohio Home Station.

A liquid spray of lead arsenate is about the only method of controlling the codling moth. The spray commonly known as the calyx spray is of greatest importance in preventing apples from becoming wormy.

Use one and one-half pounds of powdered lead arsenate to 50 gallons of water, or if the paste form of lead arsenate is used add three pounds to 50 gallons of water.

The young worms of the first brood usually enter the fruit through the calyx or blossom end of the apple.

Make the application after most of the petals have fallen. The rule usually followed is to spray when about three-fourths of the petals or white part of the blossom are shed. To be effective, the application must be made before the calyx end of the apple closes. After the calyx is closed, it is almost impossible to force the poison into it.

The application should be made with a pump that will maintain at least 200 pounds constant pressure. Use a good, strong spray hose and extension rod equipped with a bordeaux nozzle or spray gun.

The spray must be forced into the calyx end of the apple. This means that the tree must be sprayed from all angles. Each calyx cup must be loaded with poison because from this cup the young worm takes its first lunch. Do not omit the first or calyx spray. It is the most effective.

A few worms will evade the calyx spray. Some of them will first feed on the tender leaves and then enter the fruit through the side instead of the end.

A second spray consisting of the same amount of lead arsenate added to 50 gallons of bordeaux mixture should be applied about two weeks after the first spray.

A complete spray schedule for controlling the codling moth is not complete until four different sprays are applied. The third spray should be the same as the second and applied about four weeks after the second spray. The fourth spray is the same as the second and should be applied about four weeks after the third. It would be better to omit the third and fourth than to omit the first and second. The first should not be omitted.

SUPERIOR RED RASPBERRIES

Most Varieties Grown in Middle West Have Been Free From Disease or Insect Enemies.

While red raspberries naturally grow wild in cool climates, when cultivated they can be made to produce good crops in warmer climates. So far most varieties of red raspberries grown in the Middle West have been reasonably free from plant diseases or insect enemies, so it is a good crop for our fruit garden.

Fruit of this kind requires a little more attention to details to secure a crop than some of the more commonly grown small fruits. Adverse weather conditions, both in summer and in winter, frequently cause injury to the canes, but good cultural methods will go a long way toward overcoming this trouble.

TWO TYPES OF RASPBERRIES

Red Variety Is Propagated by Sprouts or Suckers and Is Different From Black.

There are two distinct types of raspberries as well as the hybrid of the two. The red raspberry is propagated by suckers or sprouts similar to the blackberry, and requires different methods of training and pruning from the black raspberry, which is propagated from tips similar to the dewberry. The purple raspberry is a hybrid of the red and black, grows from tips like the black, but much higher. The fruit has characteristics common to both the black and red.

DON'T PUT MANURE IN HOLES

Experienced Orchardists Have Given Practice Thorough Trial and Condemn It.

Don't put manure in the holes when setting trees. Orchardists have given manure a thorough trial and condemn it. If you do use manure, place it on top of the ground around the tree, but be sure to scrape it away before fall. It makes fine mouse nests if you leave it near the tree.

Dry-Mix Sulphur-Lime.

Dry-mix sulphur-lime is recommended as a substitute for self-bolled lime-sulphur as a summer fungicide for tree fruits.

Control Sucking Insects. Successful control of sucking insects can be had only when every individual is hit by the mixture.

Results in Rot Control. To get best results in rot control from spraying, thin the green fruits in June so that they do not touch.

Just Ahead.

"Can you remember," asks an exchange, "how you looked forward to your future 20 years ago? Well, this is your future. What are you doing in it?" Oh—still looking forward. —Boston Transcript.

"BLOOMER GIRLS" HELPED THE DANCE

The commencement festivities will be concluded tomorrow evening when the graduating class will hold their last dance. The dance is set for eight o'clock, the fun continuing until twelve by special permission from the Board of Education. The Imperial orchestra has been secured to furnish the music six pieces in all. Refreshments will be in order throughout the evening. The school gymnasium, the place for the dance, is being appropriately decorated for the occasion.

A nominal admission per couple will be charged at the door. All present students and alumni of the high school and alumni of the two academies are cordially invited to attend.

Monday afternoon, the seniors staged a seven inning ball game to help pay the decorating expenses. The boys of the class dressed up as bloomer girls and tackled the Varsity. No one would disclose his identity, all acting under assumed names. The so-called "Bloomer Girls" exhibited the most charms, but the Varsity won out in the farce by a score of 3-2. While not much of a ball game, it was a huge success as a laughing stock, and some funds were realized for the seniors' most important social function of tomorrow night.

Taking It By and Large.

As far as we are able to understand Einsteinism, time is something that can be measured with a two-foot rule, and space is something that can be measured with a clock. As old Confucius once remarked, "It may be so, but is it?"—From the Argonaut.

Garden Peas More Popular.

Commercial production of garden peas for seed in 1922 totaled 46,000,000 pounds, an increase of 75 per cent over the production of 1921, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. The average production for the last five years was 54,000,000 pounds.

This is done especially when there is no policeman in sight.

CUNEO MAKES MORE CHANGES

Transfers Beverage Business To Zaccaro And Buys Hapeman Market For Lobby For His Hotel—Hapeman To Return To Red Hook.

John J. Cuneo, who for a number of years conducted a store for the sale of beverages at 618 Broadway, and who on Saturday sold Lake Katrine Inn and privileges to Ettore D. Raffaldi, has transferred the stock, fixtures and business of the 618 Broadway place to John Zaccaro who will continue the business. Mr. Zaccaro is a brother-in-law of Mr. Cuneo and has been employed at this place of business and at Lake Katrine for twenty-one years and has made many friends. On Monday Mr. Cuneo purchased the stock and fixtures of the meat market at 614 Broadway of William H. Hapeman who it is understood will move to Red Hook, where his parents, who are aged, reside, so he can be near them, and expects to open a market there. Mr. Cuneo plans to take a part of the store, which is a large one, under the Cuneo Hotel, and convert it into an office and lobby for the hotel, the present office being too small to accommodate the increase in the demand for rooms in the hotel from tourists.

MORE IMPROVEMENTS AT THE ADVANCE RESTAURANT

William von Berg of the Advance Restaurant, who has taken over the store adjoining his restaurant in the Advance building on Wall street, opposite the court house, from which store Ralph Clearwater has moved his women's wear shop to 206½ Wall street, is having the entrance to the former Clearwater store closed by a large plate glass show window taken from the side of the entrance. There will be but one street entrance to the restaurant. The new addition will be used by Mr. von Berg as a dining room after an entrance is made from the side of the present large restaurant dining room, and decorations made, and necessary equipment installed, which will make the Advance restaurant one of the largest and most complete along the Hudson river.

NUGENT GAVE BROTHER ESTATE

Surrogate Kaufman has handed down a decision in the matter of the judicial settlement of the account of James J. Nugent as administrator of the estate of Patrick F. Nugent of this city, in which a claim made by the administrator that he was the sole owner of the property of the decedent by virtue of a gift causa mortis was contested by Richard Nugent and three nieces. Surrogate Kaufman sustains the claim of James J. Nugent that Patrick F. Nugent, who was his brother, gave him his property, consisting of savings bank deposits and War Savings Stamps to the value of about $3,900, in anticipation of death, and holds that the gift causa mortis comes well within the court decisions regarding the requirements for the validity of such gifts.

MORE IN LIFE THAN MONEY

Writer Admits That His Rules for Living May Be Odd, But He Does Them Ably.

Do you find your mind dwelling a great deal upon money, upon the making of money, upon the spending of money? I don't know whether my idea, my policy, my practice regarding this matter is wise or not. However, it has worked out to my satisfaction and is not going to cause any regrets at the close of the chapter. I very early made up my mind how I would act in regard to money making and money spending. I said to myself: "I am going to make all the money I can honestly, and I shall spare no effort to increase my usefulness, and as a corollary, my earning capacity. I am going to spend what I need to spend and spend it neither stingily nor foolishly, but in a rational, sensible way. And then I am going to let it go at that. Whether I build up a fortune rapidly or succeed in saving only slowly, I am not going to worry one iota."

The result was that I rarely let my mind dwell on the subject of money. I found myself becoming more and more interested, as I grew older, in what I could accomplish, in what I could put into the world, and less concerned over how much I could have in return. To make the confession which follows will probably damn me as a business man, but the truth is that I repeatedly forgot to go and draw my salary, and was surprised to find two or three checks handed me by the cashier instead of one check—with the result that the cashier finally hit upon the plan of mailing me my salary weekly! Let me make another confession, also, a very unbusinesslike one, I fear: I never kept regular tabs on how much money I had in the bank. I knew, of course, in a general way about how rapidly or slowly I was getting ahead of my expenditures and once in a while I would inquire as to the exact status.

I don't like people who are continually thinking about money and continually talking about money. Money isn't life; money is only a by-product of life. The main thing, as I see it, is to develop your abilities to the fullest extent, apply them day by day with all possible diligence and intelligence, honestly earn as much as you can; spend prudently, and, as your circumstances improve, more and more generously and unselfishly utilize the surplus as profitably as you know how. Then forget the money end of life and devote your mind to useful effort.

And the chances are it will all come out right in the end.—B. C. Forbes in Forbes Magazine.

Corden Oil was strong, advancing 1 point to 43½. Other oil stocks were heavy. Pan American Petroleum declined ¼ to 66, Standard Oil of N. J. ¼ to 32½, Producers and Refiners ¼ to 37½ and Texas Company ¼ to 43½.

Dull and irregular price movements characterized the forenoon trading. Prices were influenced by renewed short selling and intermittent covering operations. The railroad group was greatly depressed, many of the leading issues losing from 1 to 2 points. The motor group showed better resistance to selling pressure. The oil shores held relatively steady.

Weakness continued in the fourth hour, especially in the railroad group, in which early losses were further extended. Quotations given by C. H. Halsey & Co., 27 William street, New York City, branch office, Warren Building, 260-62 Fair street, Kingston, N. Y.

Superior Breed of Poultry.
The village of Brackel, in Belgium, enjoys the fame of having originated one of the most celebrated races of domestic fowls. The Belgians do not hesitate to assert that the Brackel fowls are unequalled for the excellence and number of their eggs, while the roosters have developed, thanks to generations of cultivation and influence of "crowing tournaments," a power and rhythm of voice equally unrivaled. The breeders have a theory that the musical contents in which the Brackel roosters are trained serve to develop the peculiar qualities of the race. However, this may be it is certain that cultivation has differentiated these fowls from all others.—Washington Star.

TOTS LOCKED IN CLOSET 43 HOURS

Youngsters Discovered Exhausted and Asleep in Apartment Where They Played.

RESCUE DUE TO HUNCH

Warren, Ohio.—A little wooden door leading from an unoccupied room on the second floor of a downtown business block to a tiny cubby hole of a back-stairs closet swung open the other day and furnished an unexpected solution to a mystery that began when three small children disappeared two days before.

The children, for whom more than 200 searchers had been dragging the Mahoning river, combing by-ways and searching woods and fields near Warren, were found asleep in the closet.

They had been there for 43 hours, alone in the dark, and without food or water.

They had been made prisoners when, selecting the closet as a likely spot to play, they entered and shut the door behind them. Its spring lock snapped shut and they were helpless.

Gets Lucky Inspiration.

Their rescue was the result of a lucky inspiration that came to M. V. Buzard, manager of a Warren freight service bureau, and president of the Searchers Find Children in a Closet.

Warren Lions Club. Mr. Buzard was standing on Main street, discussing the mysterious disappearance of the children with another citizen. He was in front of the three-story brick building of the city market house.

Suddenly it occurred to him that the upper floors of the building were unoccupied and tenanted.

"Why not take a look around upstairs?" he suggested.

The two men climbed the stairs and began looking through the empty rooms. They came to the door to the little closet, opened it and found the youngsters.

Exhausted and Grimy.

The children are Margaret and John Williams, five and three, respectively, and Teresa Sanford, three. A physician was summoned at once to give medical treatment to them. All were exhausted from their long confinement, and little Teresa was the only one able to give any connected account of the accident that had imprisoned them.

All of the children were covered with grime from head to foot. The closet where they had been made prisoners, a tiny box of a place measuring approximately six by three feet, had not been swept for years, and its walls and floor were coated with dust which adhered to their faces, hands and clothing.

30th Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Van Nostrand celebrated their thirtieth wedding anniversary Saturday, June 23, at their home on Center street. Their children and grandchildren were present. The home was prettily decorated with roses and laurel.

A Coming Wedding.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Miss Edith Seamon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Seamon of Saugerties, to T. Harold Shields of Bombay, N. Y. The ceremony will take place Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, John street, Saugerties.

Terwilliger-Garrison.

A very pretty wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Garrison of Allgerville, when on Sunday, June 24th, their daughter, Jeanette B. Garrison, was united in marriage to Selah Terwilliger, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Terwilliger, of Kerhonkson. The Rev. Newman L. Heroy, a former pastor at Allgerville, performed the beautiful ring ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father and was charmingly gowned in white crepe de chine with bridal veil, caught with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and smilax. Her sister, Miss Helen Garrison, was bridesmaid and wore a gown of white silk and carried pink roses. The bride's two nieces, Edith and Elizabeth Garrison, were flower girls and carried baskets of pink roses. The best man was Wallace Terwilliger, a brother of the groom. Miss Mary R. Garrison, a sister of the bride, presided at the piano and played the Lohengrin wedding march. Miss Alta Rice of Rockville Center, N. Y., very beautifully sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly" just prior to the ceremony. After congratulations had been extended to the happy couple, a delicious luncheon was served. Guests were present from Kerhonkson, Ellenville, Kingston, Rockville Center, Homer and Allgerville. An interesting fact was recalled, that the mothers and fathers of both the bride and the groom had been married 35 years ago in the same room in which the present happy event took place. The bride is a graduate of the Ellenville High School and Training Class and of the New Paltz Normal and has been teaching for the last six years in the junior and senior high schools of Rockville Center, N. Y. The groom is a graduate of the Ellenville High School and of the Albany Business College and is one of the members of the firm of Terwilliger Bros. of Kerhonkson. The newlyweds were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Terwilliger left by auto for a two weeks' stay in camp, after which they will return to live at Kerhonkson, where a newly furnished home awaits them.

CLASS DAY AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

Graduates Listen to Oration, Songs and Prayers—Rugers Debating Trophy Presented.

Monday evening the graduating class of the high school made merry with Class Day exercises, held in the high school auditorium. The curtain rolled back to disclose a pretty scene, a garden, surrounded by a number of cedar trees, Japanese lanterns hung around the place, and the moon casting its soft light upon the assembled classmates. The different colored dress of the young ladies and the boys in their blue coats and white flannels gave the place the effect of the charming setting for a garden party.

When the crowd had settled, President Mac Fadden welcomed the audience in his class's exercises. He spoke of the sadness that comes with graduation, how the class goes away from the place and friends that have become so dear to them. Then he urged all to take up the spirit of Class Day and join in with them in their festivity.

The history of this class was then given by Catherine McCounane. She traced its activities from the time the members entered back in 1919 through to the end, and the record indicated that the class has had some tall hustlers.

Experienced in the woes of life, these seniors have a lot of knowledge that they fully appreciate. Having tender hearts and a desire to see those coming after them make good and eliminate such flaws as they themselves had, these sophisticated and fatherly seniors condescended to giving their next in line, the juniors, some strong advice. Kenneth LeFever presented this advice in a grave and sincere manner. The juniors, however, have not been asleep, and they are ever ready to let others know it. Ralph Longyear, president of the junior class, replied to the advice and left the impression that the seniors were not so far ahead of the juniors, if at all. The rivalry seems to have been close, in some cases one and in others the other having the better of the argument.

An original poem, entitled, "A Rainy Day," was the next number. Lucy Harder, class poet, composed and delivered this poem. It showed skill with the pen and its presentation was of the best type of elocution.

The students are not all there is to the school, however. There are thirty some teachers there all of whom have had a great deal to do with the present graduates. These were not forgotten by the class, and Kenneth Davis, as class representative for that purpose, delivered in fine style a touching address to the members of the faculty. The fine work these instructors and counselors have done toward making true men and women out of the students, their weary and tedious task of instructing so faithfully carried out, the many times they were severely vexed but met the situation with calmness and judgment, their careful watching of the actions and thoughts of the students in the class room to study out and help them develop, all these are fully appreciated by the students. Davis's conclusion was especially commendable, when he mentioned each teacher by name, coupled with a fitting descriptive adjective.

Margaret Elmendorf, class elocutionist, delivered two poems, "L'Envol," and "A Disappointment." She was accompanied by Getrude Walsh on the piano. The poems were very well delivered, the piano giving the recitation a light and happy atmosphere.

Not so wonderful as possible, these seniors. Swelled heads, bragging mouths, stiff walk, all for nothing. Yes, they did have faults and many of them. It is impossible to recount all the foolish things they did, from failures as a body to actions of the individuals. They were the most insipid class that ever graduated—but we cannot tell it the way Gordon Barnes did. As a critic, he was a crackerjack, and not one chance slipped by him. Every possible point of attack was used, and when he got through it was only the thought of the diploma coming that could in the least cheer up the graduates and make them feel any of the pride they had previously.

What each student did in the past is recorded in the pages of the "Maroon," but the classmates are not satisfied with knowing about the past, they want to gaze into the future. Taking the messages in several cups of tea, their prophecies, Marjorie Richards, foretold the happenings to the members of the class in the years to come. Some of these were flattering, others heartening, but the spirit of jest was in all, and more than one laugh from the audience was resultant.

Adolph Stumpf had been chosen orator and he certainly upheld the honors. His address was original, the subject being "Patriotism." The theme carried an appreciation of patriotism on the battlefield, but struck at a higher, a nobler, and a more trying form, that of peace, that of citizenship. Stumpf's oratory could be classed as little short of the best and his speech carried with it vision, the highest vision for world peace.

In connection with these exercises it was thought fitting to mention the high honors won by one of the school's teams. There was one championship team this year, and that was in debating. In recognition of their winning the championship of their section, the Kingston team was presented by the Rutgers Debating League with a silver loving cup, fittingly inscribed. Theodore Brinkhoff of Beacon, president of the league, was present to make the presentation speech. He spoke of the value of debating, comparing it as training for higher things in one's life work, to the training an athlete goes through in preparation for the big race. He complimented the Kingston boys on their victory and expressed his hope that they continue in the work.

As its last official act, the class of '23 made a will, appointing Ethel Shafer the executrix. Each member of the class was left an heirloom, something appropriate to his or her

TAXI MAN GRABBED #1, WOMAN BROKE HEADLIGHT

Woman may be the weaker sex but those who witnessed an incident on the Strand last Saturday night will hardly believe it. On this occasion a woman commanded a taxi to take her home due to the fact that she did not feel well. The taxi man went away with her and soon after came back with the woman still in the cab. The taxi driver asked for his fare and at first the woman refused to give it to him. Finally, however, she held out a one dollar bill which the driver grabbed and refused to give her any change. This incensed the woman to such a degree that she broke one of the taxi driver's headlights with her fist and then went on her way.

hobby or particular qualities. Like the prophecy, this part of the program was in some cases complimentary and in others almost the opposite.

The spirit of fun prevailed throughout the evening and jest was more than abundant, but at the last, the students again got serious and joined for the last time together in one verse of the school song, a most appropriate close for such an excellent Class Day program.

A few years ago an unknown young woman came out of the west and in a few months was America's foremost illustrator—Miss Neysa Moran McMen. Everyone thought the comely young artist was wedded to her art, and it was the occasion of a distinct surprise when it was learned she had secretly married John D. Baragwanath, a New York consulting engineer, and gone to Europe on her honeymoon—alone, to be followed later by her husband.

Why Thirteen is Unlucky.

Thirteen is supposed to be the unluckiest of numbers. In ancient times it was quite the reverse! Men in those days always counted in dozens, and it was customary to add one "for luck."

The baker's dozen is a modern survival. The present belief that thirteen has a baleful influence comes from the Last Supper, when Judas Iscariot was the thirteenth at table and the first to rise from the meal.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

by S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

Vacation time is here, and for the next two or three months the question of how best to spend this period of rest and recreation will engross the attention of millions of people throughout the country.

In the days of our forefathers, vacations were of small consequence and were looked upon as a form of indulgence that could be enjoyed only by the chosen few. Time spent in absolute idleness and money utilized in mere pleasure—seeking were frowned upon generally by serious minded persons who regarded such experiences as unjustifiable examples of idleness and waste.

But viewpoints change with progress. We are living more scientifically and with broader vision in such matters now than was the case fifty years ago.

The vacation, if rightfully made use of, is a form of thrift thoroughly in keeping with the rightful standards of current life. But to come within the scope of this definition, one's vacation must be spent either in complete rest or in the occupation of time in such a way as to be upbuilding physically and mentally. Travel if kept within the bounds of one's finances, is a splendid type of vacation because it gives a change of environment, gets the mind away from the usual routine and broadens one's educational equipment. On the other hand, the man who takes his everyday problems with him and keeps his mind still riveted on the questions that are before him during the entire year cannot gain much benefit from such a vacation.

One's fitness for work throughout the year depends to some extent upon choosing the right kind of vacation. Therefore, to arrange and carry out one's plans for the relaxation period with the same prudent consideration given all the important problems of life, constitutes a very good example of thrift.

Anderson Colins a Simile.

William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, has issued a statement, which begins thus:

The published report that the staff of the Anti-Saloon League of the nation is to meet merely to combat the nomination of Governor Smith for the presidency is amusingly absurd. Governor Smith has no more chance for the presidency than a dog with sciele legs has to catch an asbestos cat in the regions of eternal torridity. However he will be re-elected governor of New York state if he wants it, over any wet Republican if one is nominated.

Fast Traveling.

Mrs. George J. Gould, Sr., second wife of the late multi-millionaire who died in Nice, France, is shown on her arrival in New York with her children, Jane and George 3rd. She brought back the body of her husband for burial in this country.

PHILLY STARS HERE TOMORROW

Wednesday afternoon at 6:30 at the Fair Grounds "Chapple" Johnson's Philadelphia Colored Stars will engage the Colonials in what promises to be a good game of ball. The boys from Philadelphia have defeated such teams as the D. & H. Generals, Oneonta and the Schenectady K. of C. which speaks well of their ability.

The Colonials will not play in Schenectady on Thursday as the management has cancelled the game. Manager Borzi gave as his reason for doing this the fact that he is not receiving the support of the Schenectady fans. Sunday there were only 700 out to the game there.

On July 4 Manager Julius Dolan will bring his team from the mountains down to this city to battle with the local team. A double header will be staged between these two teams. Whether there will be one game in the morning and one in the afternoon or two in the afternoon has not been decided as yet.

Manager Lou Brown is still endeavoring to get in touch with Owen Carroll, the star Holy Cross pitcher, but as yet his efforts have not met with any success.

BUT $75,000 CASH FOR BIG FIGHT

Montana Promoters Will Be Game. However, Reports Walsh and Pull On Bout at Huge Loss.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Shelby, Montana, June 26.—A chance remark, dropped in the presence of the writer today by a man whose index finger fingers on the local pulse, developed the interesting fact that the sum of $75,000 represents the actual cash taken in to date by the promoters of the Dempsey-Gibbons half million dollar dream. It was the first direct information that has been obtained on the matter of ticket sales, this secret having been guarded with the jealous care of a mother for her first born.

From another source, equally reliable, we have been assured that the bout will take place as scheduled, although contrary reports have been very active during the last 24 hours. These reports purported to indicate that the final installment of $100,000 covering Dempsey's guarantee, would be allowed to go by default and the entire enterprise dropped with the alacrity of one unhanding a red headed stove lid. Our information is quite to the contrary. It is to the effect that money will be paid when due and the fight put on, although actual information as to just how this desirable condition may be hastened is a bit vague. The Great Northern railroad and capitalists of Great Falls seem to have qualified for the martyr role that will make Montana safe for the padded knuckle.

In other words, the hot sports of this locality having wished themselves into a colossal bloomer, are ready to pay the price of their folly. It will be a stiff one.

If the actual receipts are $75,000 a week before the fight only a miracle can bring the investors fifty cents on the dollar when they come to count the returns. Dempsey, first of all, will receive $310,000. This is as certain as day before yesterday unless Jack Kearns has a couple of wisdom teeth extracted. If by some windfall the receipts should reach this sum or more Gibbons will begin to cut in on each additional dollar. If not, Gibbons, the promoters and the sovereign state of Montana will be all to cabbage.

The work of promotion, the printing of the tickets, the salary of officers help and what not, will add another $50,000 to the general grief. The erection of the arena will contribute $65,000 more and we have it on the word of a lumberman that the structure is almost worthless from the standpoint of salvage.

BROWNIES DEFEAT VICTORY JUNIORS

On the Hasbrouck Park diamond Saturday afternoon the Brownies A. C. crossed bats with the Victory Juniors. The Brownies were victorious. The Brownies got their first run in the first inning and led 1 to 0 until the third when each team put over one run. In the fourth, the Brownies scored another run, and in the fifth they sent four runners over the rubber for their last tally. The Victory Juniors got one run in each of the sixth and seventh innings. The final score was 7 to 3 in the Brownies' favor. The battery for the winners was H. Streifer and H. Emmicks, the former pitching a good game. The score: Victory Juniors... 0 0 1 0 1 1—3 Brownies A. C.... 1 0 1 1 4 0—7
